
DATA PROTECTION LAW

Personal data play an increasingly important role for our clients' business success. Whether a business model relies on the use of personal data, or personal data must be safeguarded for business compliance purposes, complying with national and international data protection regulations remains a challenge for many enterprises.

Our expert team are specialised in data protection, providing advice to international groups and medium-sized businesses. We advise you how to design your business processes so that they comply with data protection regulations, create a policy with you for data transfer both within your group and internationally, and help you with internal compliance investigations. If you suffer from a hacking attack or data theft we help you protect the parties involved and your company reputation from damages.

We assume informal meetings with authorities for cooperation purposes - if required, without identifying your company - and represent you in formal proceedings.

We focus on practical solutions and a hands-on approach.

AT A GLANCE:

- Data protection compliance and data protection audits
- Safeguarding cross-border data flows
- Design of products and business processes which meet data protection obligations
- Data breaches and hacks
- Preparation of data protection agreements
- Codes of conduct and compliance
- Works agreements on the use of the operational IT infrastructure
- Communication with regulatory authorities
- Representation in regulatory proceedings
- Training and support of the operational data protection officer